

which by reason of their voracity are more subject to crudities, and therefore to winds, &c.

He annexes to the whole several Appendixes; whereof one contains the Doses of the received Emeticks and Purgatives both simple and compound; Another expatiateth into the praises of Hippocrates: The third considers the several Duties of Physitians, Apothecaries and Chirurgions: The fourth and last delivers a Method of making a good Herball.

ERRATA left un-observed in some of the later Tracts.

IN Numb. 73. p. 2197. l. 2. del. that whole line: that hole in some of the Shop-Kermes being accidental only, and ever on the bottom-part cleaving to the branch; and the time of gathering them for colour is without doubt before they are pierced, and whilest the Animal is yet in vermiculo, and consequently the Husk intire.

In Numb. 74. p. 2238. l. 38. r. h. 6. 37'. ib. l. 39. in col. 2. r. h. 5. 52'.

In Numb. 75. p. 2244. l. 3. r. Real Infinites. p. 2245. l. 8. r. any proportion. p. 2247. l. ult. r. of $14\frac{3}{4}$. p. 2248. l. 36. r. not $14\frac{3}{4}$. p. 2269. l. 36. r. halitum meum. p. 2270. l. 27. r. altit. est peripheriâ.

L O N D O N,

Printed for John Martyn, Printer to the Royal Society. 1671.