Herman, (Ev.) 7th Oct., 1856.

Last night I sait down to play a gentleman's game of cards with three citizens of this place. I had $480. This morning this $3 bill is all that is left me. I will not say they cheated and awindled me, but I will say I regard them as a d-decayly trio. For the benefit of those who visit Hickman, I have made this confession of my folly. If you value this confession of my folly. If you value yeaks belock, do not pamble with any triod, repectable citizens. If Hickman is the same bill, is appended the is

Thou carries to me, poor little note, Frommed by folly a curse: With miny a messing breathed beneath 4 send thee from my purse I pray that in whatever hands Hernafter then may'st fair. Thou'lt carry peace, and hope, and joy To each one, and to all;

by Monteath & Badgiey, merchants on the dock.

The Teller, as is often done, where our Bank's are drawn upon for august an amount, declined cashing it; but not doubling its gennineness, asked the confidential gentleman at what Bank he usually did business, and receiving for reply, "the Bank of the Capitol"—(this was true—he had just drawn $5,000 from that institution on a forged check) told him to deposit the check therein. Confidential man replied that he had no objections to such a disposition of it, provided they would certify it, and handing it back to the book-keeper, that officer immediately wrote the word "good," together with his initial, upon it. Confidential gentleman porfectly missided—walks to the Bank of the Capitol, where he COTTON SCHEESEDED BY SILE.-The Pari
