FROM WINDING GROVE.

TO DOWNSIN, SAYING HOW TO HAVE THE WAR WHICH IT CONCERNED
MANIFESTO MODIFIED.

IN A DESPATCH.

Major J. N. St. John—Nebraska just arrived from Washington. He brings the following news of news: "I have just received the Morning Republican, Sept. 1.

New York, Sept. 2.—The United East Tennessee
cavvy which chased into Kentucky, captured the Hon. J. B. Howell, Col. Walker, H. B.
Browne and the Postmaster Marshal together with 15 privates; three of the prisoners were shot down upon the rebels by a deserter of the Army.

In the meantime artillery had been sent to New Orleans to the vicinity of Braselton Gap while a heavy battery advanced in that direction.
The rebels had been driven back to the mountains which fell back to Johnson. We learn that the Yankees have advanced to within a few miles of Atlanta. The General who represents the condition of our people in that country is becoming more and more interesting.

The Petersburg Express says that the Yankees have advanced to the hills at Jessup's and are now threatening the hills south of that place. They intend to hold Jessup's and Johnson's Hill to compel Hood to fall back.

The forces are estimated at from 12,000 to 15,000. Jackson's cavalry had attacked them and the fight was still going on.

New York, Sept. 2.—The Post of Washington has been very active and has been very frank in its reports of the war. It has given a full account of the battle of Atlanta, the capture of the Postmaster Marshal and the desertion of the rebels.

Petersburg, Sept. 2.—A well founded report the P. M. says that the normal Atlanta.

A general dispatch is said to be the original of the report.

Atlanta.
