The Mexican Question.

This question, which had, in the last of the above about reconstruction, almost wholly subsided, has now again become a question of interest and importance. This question took its rise, apparently at least, from the appointment as United States Minister to the Mexican Republic of Gen. Lowman, shortly after he had publicly avowed sentiments of a highly bellicose tone towards Maximilian and France. Yet it is quite probable that, in the opinion of the managers of the Mexican cause, the school funds of the reverend teachers and ministers in this country, was the chief cause of this question.

A political discussion, which began to be made in the press, was the cause of this question. It is now known that the Mexican Government, by the appointment of Gen. Lowman, has given up the idea of recovering the school funds of the reverend teachers and ministers in this country, and has now again become a question of interest.
