We understand that while the workmen were engaged yesterday morning, upon a new building erecting in the faubourg of St. Mary, a large cornice fell upon the scaffolding, and caused thes whole to give way; by which four men were precipitated from the third story to the ground. All of them were more or less injured, and one of them, we are informed, dangerously.

Paintings. - In the way of intellectual amusements, few seasons have offered to our Citizens such treats as now await them. Benjamin West created a new era in the English School of historical painting. David did the same in the French School. As a production of the first artist, the picture of Christ rejected by the Jowe, affords a notable and noble instance. It was one of the latest as, it containly is the best of this venerable artist's production. David's painting of Cain, contains all the brillioney and richness of this artist's pencil, and his peculiar style and manner are as boldly developed as in any effor of his pencil. Both of these pictures are now open for exhibition in this City, and we are sorry to add, that neither of them have attracted graph. that attention which their real excellencies have commanded wherever and whenever seen. It is understood that both will shortly be removed. We would venture to urge every lover of taste to VISITERS.

By the ship Majestic, capt. Page, which arrived vesterday morning from Liverpool, whence she sailed on the 19th January, London and Liverpool papers up to the 16th were received. We Barstow, arrived last night from New-York, files of the Journal of Commerce and Mercantile Advertiser to the 24th February, inclusive. The latter announces the arrival of several packets from Liverpool and Havre; among which was the Pacific, which sailed from Liverpool on the 17th January, and the Erie from Havre on the 12th. The files of papers received by those arrivals, being up to the days of sailing inclusive, are consequently later than ours; and we therefore avail ourselves of the abstract of news contained in the Mercantile Advertiser, and shall continue our extracts from that paper.

The affairs of Belgium become more and more complicated. Whilst the National Congress seems only employed in the discussion of a constitutional act, a multitude of incidental points of the utmost consequence come to thwart their arrangements, and render the general question most difficult of solution and decision, unless events should occur which may at one cut through the Gordian knot, which appears at present inexplicable.

The Congress pauses after having quietly enough voted about 30 articles, and begins to discuss the choice of Sovereign, a question which to say truth, all the world is commenting upon and creating rumours about. The French Government keeps within the bounds which reason and policy have laid down of France, whilst England, Russia, and Prus for it, implying, with much judgment, that it sia, invaded all they thought proper; it was felt will support the independence of the Belgians, at London that in consequence of our revolubut will not so connect itself to incur the charge of an ambitious desire to extend its territory. In other words, it awaits the chances of political changes, but abstains from being the aggressor.

BRUSSELS PAPERS.

BRUSSELS, JAN. 6.-In the Congress yester day, M. Vilain XIV, read the following proposition of M. Pirson:-

"I have the honor to propose to the National 20th of December last, which was, at first, announced as containing the formal acknowledge ment of the new State of Belgium, contains, on the contrary, nothing but a mystification; directthe Provisional Government to recall the Envoys from London immediately, and resume hostilities against Holland; declares that the fortune of war alone shall decide the question between the two countries; to which effect, and in ordthat King william may not plead ignorance, thi present decree shall be made known to the ad-proposition being supported-M. Pirson addressed the Congress as follows Gentlemen,-You have all, no don't as well as myself, read and re-read the protocol of Lon don, of December 20, and your indignation, lik my own, must have increased at every perusal, Will you, then, any longer have confidence in the Diplomatists, who at Paris, as well as a Brussels, have estentationally announced that the independence of Brussels was acknowledged by th fieve Great Powers! It admits of no question as to the rights over the Grand King of the Netherlands, only it is stated he was exercising them, while in fact they are now ex ercised by us; it is true, we have not been in possession of them for a year and a day,-(Laughter.) - Not a word is said about Maestricht, or the citadel of Antwerp, probably because the King of the Netherlands still holds them, and that it is hoped he may be able to retain them.

"A member of the committee for foreign af fairs has told us that the King of Holland proposed to evacuate the citadel of Antwerp on the 20th inst. It is because he hopes that by the 20th the conferences of London will have more completely hampered us than we are now. These facts, gentlemen, unfold before my eyes a project, upon which I cannot entertain the slightest doubt. It is nothing more or less than a dii ion of the country that is contemplated. We shall see, or rather, we shall not see, because you will take care to thwart perfidious designs. To thwart these designs they must be known. They are these;—setting out from the principle of the balance of power of 1815, a balance, the only object of which was to narrow the bounds lution, the diplomatic materials must be again manifested. It was these materials in 1815, animals to which the name of souls was given, but who showed they had no soul, because they suffered themselves to be put in pound like beasts.
