An American invasion of the Oregon muss the promptly reassed and severely. We fear that former concernions made to the Americans "for the make of peace" have produced much of the present difficulty. The expedient of sending an ambassador extraordinary, to yield to their most extravity and termands, has left them to believe that any thing may be potained from us by the bullying and inflated with notious of their power and importance. It is acarely necessary to multiply extracts. The fluggish press appears very generally to consider that we are entirely in the wrong; that the moderation of Great Britain has exhited the United States to order the track of the track of the search of the sea declared his determination to maintain the honor and rights of England at any cost. The great difficulty in this question is, and has been not to discover what the American or the English 19th is, but simply to make out what the American aran. We English are anxious to satisfy them, and give up all we can with honor. But American prebasions have always no regularly and impudently advanced as our claims receded, that our statement being not think, with much reason, that all the American prebasions have always no regularly and impudently advanced as our claims receded, that our statement being not think, with much reason, that all the Americans exch.—(we allude, of course, to the mad and dominant portion of them)—in war. THE POLISH INSURRCTION

The German papers which have to-day come to hand, says the Journal des Debats, bring news from Gracow up to the 34th ult.

The events passing in Poland appear to have assumed a serious character, which is not disquised by the principal organs either of the Prassian or Anstian government. The city of Cracow, the capital is Poland under its former kings, the descendants of the Jagellous, had, according to those poursals, for fear days been the sear of a new Government, contaging itself the "Provisional Government of the Jagellous, had, according to those poursals, for

The "Chamber of Commerce" yesterday took up, and acted upon, the Sub-Treasury Ball,—and up, and acted upon, the Sub-Treasury Ball,—and by the unanimous concurrence of gentlemen of both parties, as we are informed, the bill, as it stands, in condemned has ruinous, and inspracticable in execution. They appointed a committee to make a business report upon: this measure, and its consequences to trade, commerce, business in general, the banks and currency of the country. From that committee we expect an able and lucid business report,—one that will be instructive to Congress and influential throughout the country.

Connecticy—It is not so clear, as we supposed that the Locofocos will have a majority of the Legislature of Connecticat. They have now a larger number of members than the Whigs, but it is believed by the Whig Editors of the State, that the vacancies which are to be filled, will be supplied with a sufficient number of Whigs to give them the preponderance in the Legislature.

First in Mosilia.—A fire broke out in Mobils on the 17th inst., in Mr. Reneau's fancy and variety store. The fire thence communicated to Mr. Holmes' millinery and dress making establishment. The contents of both stores were rained or destroyed. The goods were partially covered by insurance.
