THE WAR.

The war continues, as a setter of course, to be the principal topic of interest. People have expressed surprise at the sice progress of heatilities. Thus far Austra seems to day from her fare rigorous demonstration, and her recent adsovers wridence a disposition to relax from the offendive to the defensive. It is conjectured with some degree of plansibility that Austria is governed in this phange of tactice by stringent and one trolling metitree, one of which is the soantiness of her resources, and the other, the necessity of protecting her Lombardo-Veniuan provinces. Under these circumstances an immediate and decisive conflict is hardly to be expected, since the function is such as to justify the hazard of a fight.

Meanwhite the danger of complications thickens. The longer the war lasts, the more restive, impatient and ungovernable dues Germany become. Every hody betteres, despite the official assurances to the contrary, that a conditional alliance exists. France if any other European State under takes to help Austria. In order to be ready for the expected emergency, Russia places of her army on a war footing
