Several cathens of this city have been ar rested by some of the Irishmen who are emrillining seized their horses and threatened the driver of death in case he would not step the sarriage a fight took place between those that were in the coach and the assassins. Captain Narrague, who was among the visitors, had his arm braised, and almost all his friends have been ill-treated by those wretches. The ex-comnumber Ribetti, who was in company with capt.
Nextigue, seized a post and derted it against the head of an Irishman whom he has desfigured for ever. On the affidavit of these gentlemen a detachment of the City-Guard have succeeded in arresting the villains.

New-York, Sept. 13. *FOUR DAYS LATER FROM LONDON. We have received a London and Liverpool paper of the 7th August, by the arrival this forenoon of the ship Helen, Cobb, from Liverpool. The late hour at which these papers came into our hands leaves us no time to speak of their contents, more than to say in a single word, that all was tranquil and quiet in Paris since the revolution. No sort of tumults of excesses had been committed. The Theatres and other places of amusement were open, and the affairs of the government were seemingly going on with cessary for what concerns me and the rest of my almost as much order and regularity as if no refamily. volution had occurred.

It appears that Charles X has recognized the Duke of Orleans in the temporary capacity of Licutement General of the Kingdom, and has himself abdicated in favor of the Duke of Bordeaux, the Dauphin waiving his claim to crown. What amention the French nation will pay to this act remains to be seen. The King, in the mean time, was to leave the kingdom with his family, having first delivered up the crown jew-The speech of the Duke of Orleans, unnouncing the abdication, dwells on the necessity of providing against arbitrary violations of the clearter, and for the security of the liberty of the press. Reports were in circulation in London that the deposed King of France, Charles the X. had arrived in that city under the title of the Duke of Milan. Other reports state that it is his intention to embark for the United States.

The example of Paris seems to be followed with great unanimity by the provinces.

It is said in the Lordon papers that 10,000 lives were lost in the revolution.

The latest London date states that "the rapid rise of the average of wheat, as exhibited by the weekly return, renders it evident that the lowest scale of duty, as was sinticipated, must shortly
