Such a work must evidently be very useful to the law students. But it might have been plunned on a scale of creater advantage and greater utibly. The republication of treaties in a cheap form, is certainly advantageous; but a toriginal law journel would have a tenfold effect and sale. In London and Paris, Vienna and Berlin there are several periodicals of the kind—some published weekly—ethers monthly—others again quarterly—and all command extensive circulation, from the two former places especially. Why should not correct reviews or succinct abstracts of weeks—occasional reports of trials in the union; original remarks on the different features of our judicature, put our lite has not borrowed a line from fiction.—Globs. greater advantage and greater utility. The count of Limburg Stirem, lately secretary of legation at Berlin, left Rotterdam on the 17th April for London. He is the bearer of the answer of the Netherlands government to the last commenications of England and France. The answer it is said, is of a very specific nature. The last answer of the French and English governments to the communications of M. Dedel has been much discussed in the Dutch council before the reply, as mentioned above, was finally determined upon. It is understood the two governments wish to conclude a treaty with Holland alone.

The chancellor of the expected reduction of duty on many on the 19th brought in a bill reducing the revenue duties. The findowing item respecting cotton is all that we are enabled to give to day.

Raw cotton, the duty imposed in 1831 to be repealed. The whole duty at present produced 626,000.—of that 326,000 was raised by the duty of 1831; hs, however, estimated the repeal of the 1831 duty on ray cotton would cause a loss 300 000.

A NEGRO of about 13 to 20 years, o. an ordinary size, came to me to obtain the change of a bank note of $100, the value of which he did not know. As I had reason to suppose that said note had been stolen, I went in search of a commissary to have him arrested, and while in that act he made off. The owner may obtain the bank note by proving his property and paying the expenses. Apply at the meat market, No. 21, or at No. 122, Casacalvo street, may 20
