relation to them will be already ascertained by the public mind. The facts which will be given, will show the spirit animating the meeting and the tendency of public opinion.

Mr. Greely's speech at the meeting upon reading the preamble and resolutions of the Convention, was a masterpiece of logic and eloquence. He showed that the people of this State were not in a position to be governed by a man who was thinking for himself, but who was thinking for the people. He showed that the people of this State were not in a position to be governed by a man who was thinking for himself, but who was thinking for the people.
