THESE BRING LUCK. Superstitions Regard That Many Persons Have for Mere

Trifles. "Life is made up of little things, and the smaller they are the more important part they play sometimes," observed a prominent street contractor to a Washington Star reporter. "How few people fail to pick up a horse shoe if it is in their read. A pin has a similar influence among many men, but I don't think I have ever seen a woman pick up a pin in the street, though they have much more use for them than men. I pick up pins and horse shoes as often as I see them, and I don't know that I have ever had any special good luck or bad luck in consequence, and I suppose I shall continue to do so to the end of the chapter, call it superstition or anything else you may. The lucky pick-up with me, however, is marbles—the playing alleys of the boys-and I am free to admit that I would rather find a marble than any small thing that I know of. Good luck always has followed finding a marble as far as I am concerned, and in talking about it I find that others have had similar experience. My observation, though, is that marble finding is the rarest kind of good luck for women, though there is not as much superstition in it as there is about the horse shoe. You will be surprised upon talking to your circle of friends to find how many there are who are pleased to pick up a marble, and many of them will be able to give you substantial reasons for their belief. I know a Colorado lady who resides in this city—an artist of , a British novel. some distinction-who tells me that she has never failed to sell her pictures if she had a marble which she found in ber pocket, and has never been able to do so if she did not have any. Simply carrying the marble in the pocket does not work the charm. It must be found. and the more frequent the finding the more frequent the good luck."

CHINAMEN POOR HUSBANDS. English Girls in Shanghai Who Wed Mongolians Always Have Cause to Regret It.

A Vancouver dispatch gives currency to certain scandalous stories current in Shanghai, by which English girls are represented as having formed the habit of marrying Chinese young men attached to the legation in that city. There might be no great harm in the marriage of a Chinese man to a Caucasian woman if the Mongolian could be educated up to the Caucasian matrimonial standard. But the complaint that comes from Shanghai is that the Chinese cling with great pertinacity to their Mongolian view of the marriage state. If the wife rebelled at this view of the marriage relation the Chinese husband would lock her up and when opportunity offered, sell her. An infusion of English blood in a matrimonial form does not seem to have much influence upon the customs of the country. The English wives, sensitive as to the shame of the lives they were forced to lead, would make no complaints to relatives in England. In most cases the marriage had been entered into in spite of the protests of parents, a circumstance which tended to silence complants that would otherwise have been made. There is abundant fround for the conclusion that the average Chinese does not become a good Christian until the third or fourth generation.

MR. GRATEBAR TO PHILIP.

He Reminds Him That Things Are Not Automatic, and Suggests How to Make Them Go.

"I cannot too strongly impress upon you, Philip," said Mr., Gratebar, according to the New York Sun, "the fact that things in general are not automatic; that is, they will not do themselves; and the longer you put off the attack upon them the harder they are to tackle. Don't put things off, Philip. To things that require deliberation you will give sufficient thought; but, as to the run of things that come up, acquire the habit of disposing of them as they .come along; you will find it a great help in many ways. Don't cord 'em up, Philip; the first thing you know you will have more stacked up than you can waw, and then, too, the pile is liable to fall on you at any time and hurt you.

"Two things to remember, Philip: First, things are not automatic. Second, the time to attend to things is now.

"I may have mentioned these things to you before, Philip, I think very likely, in my strong desire to get you started right in the race of life; but youth, impressionable as it is in many ways, seems least susceptible to good advice, which indeed it appears to shed much as a duck does water. And so I mention these things again to you, Philip, with the hope that if my previous remarks met that fate these will find lodgement in your memory box."

Columbus' Marriage. The reason why Christopher Columbus has not yet been numbered among the saints may not be generally known.

It seems that his beatification has been urged for centuries, but has never been decreed because his marriage certificate could not be procured, and consequently his wedded life, he leaving a son (Diego), was considered concubinage. Now that the Congregation of Rites has recently discovered the missing certificates, all obstacles are removed, and ere long we may hear of "Christopher Columbus beatus."

Forged Portraits of Mummies. Dr. George Ebers, the well-known novelist and egyptologist, says that a large trade is carried on in Egypt in forged portraits of mummies. When the genuine portraits painted on wood were first shown in Europe a few years ago they found such ready sale that a concern has gone regularly into the business of making the portraits for

HAPPENS ONLY IN NOVELS.

Herein Are Given Some Points on British Emigration Theoretically and as It Really Is.

England no doubt loves us dearly, but the English authors have not yet discovered that fact in its entirety, says the Chicago Times-Herald. Clark Russell, Max Pemberton and Anthony Hope, to say nothing of Conan Doyle and Rudyard Kipling, will have it that all Americans are Yankees, although they would resent the charge that all Englishmen are cockneys. Another symptom of the drift is in relation to emigration from Great Britain. Statistics show that an enormous number of people come to this country from Great Britain, but the novelists never heard of it. Micawber and his interesting family went to Australia and got rich. So did every other emigrant that Dickens sent abroad, unless, like Martin Chuzzlewit and Mark Tapley, they were sent to this country to point a moral and adorn a tale. All English writers resemble Dickens in that respect. In their stories the emigrants all go to Australia, Canada, Africaanywhere but the United States.

This trait comes under the head of "lovalty to the crown." They know perfectly well that the British emigrant, unless assisted by a British society. takes himself and belongings to this country, and even if the society kindly lands him in Canada he takes the first chance of skipping over the border. The only time he goes to the "colonies" with cheerful alacrity is in the pages of

BEST GOVERNED CITY.

Glasgow Has Unequaled Success in the Management of Municipal Afgirs.

The leading and most commendable feature of the management of public. affairs is the principle of the sinking Ransas City Has a Nag That Is a Curifund, which is applied to every enterprise or business in which the municipality is interested, says the American Magazine of Civics. Whatever debts it has are on the sure and safe road to liquidation by the automatic operation of the sinking fund device. By this means the city of Glasgow will, inside of 50 years, furnish free water to its citizens; give them the best electric lights free; electric or water power at cost; allow them to ride on its electric road at the nominal fare of two cents for any distance and furnish to all free use of a magnificent public library.

The city affairs are managed by business men with the same prudence with which they would manage their own affairs; the question of party polities enter into no local election and it seems to be the object of the municipality to administer the city's finances in an economical way, to improve the public health in its physical and moral basis, and to give brightness and the possibility of happiness to civil life. Its success in all these has been so marked as to command the admiration of the civilized world and to gain for itself the appellation of the best governed city on the face of the globe.

THE OLD SOLDIER MUSES.

He Hears for the First Time That Set a Plate for Him All Time He Was Gone.

"I heard only the other day," said the old soldier, "that at every meal time, all the time I was away in the army in the civil war, a plate and a knife and fork were set for me at the table at home. Many a time, if I had only known it, while I was falling into line at the cook's fire at the end of the company street, with my tin plate and tin cup in my hand to get the pork and hard bread and coffee, or whatever we might have to eat, better or worse, they were setting a plate for me on the table as home. They entertained me there in spirit, if they could not in flesh, and how glad they would have been to see me sit down at the table

"Wherever we were, in camp or on the march, and whether we had much or little, my plate was always laid for me at home just the same. I wonder if it would have helped me if I had known it; if I could have eaten in spirit, as they entertained me? And I can hear them now, after all these years, when they had something that I particularly liked, "'How David would like this, if he were here.' "Dear, dear! How glad I am I got

In the Wrong Army,

A countryman who expressed a desire to enlist in Kansas City was directed by a joker to a Salvation Army tent. The Salvationists were singing a song when the farmer crowded up to their little circle. He waited patiently. Then one of the men made an address appealing for volunteers. The young farmer pushed into the circle, and, taking off his hat, stuck out his hand to the uniformed man who was talking. "I want to enlist," said the farmer. Bang went the big bass drum, and "Hallelujah!" shouted a sweet-faced little woman. "Another sinner saved! let us pray! exclaimed the soldier who held the farmer's hand, as he knelt down on the asphalt pavement reverently. The farmer was thoroughly scared by this turn of affairs. Instead of kneeling he looked about him. The prayer had already started when he got his bearings. Seizing his valise, which he had dropped on the street when he took the proffered hand of the soldier, he broke through the crowd, and amid the guffaws of a crowd of newsboys he started north on Main street. The Largest Sec.

The bishop of Selina has probably the largest see in the world, as it extends over 200,000 square miles of territory, part of which includes the Klondike gold fields. It was his father who is supposed to have been satirized as Sergt. Buzfuz in the "Pickwick Papers."

CLOSE TO THE MOON.

It Is Brought Within Easy Reach of the World by a Recent Invention.

. Herr Johann Mayer, an Austrian lieutenant, has just discovered a method by which the moon can be brought within pistol-shot of the world, figuratively speaking. Nothing among the many marvels of modern invention is more astonishing than this same discovery. By his invention Herr Mayer says the moon can be brought within a distance of 100 yards, in fact, and explored most thoroughly. Prof. Gates' combined microscope-telescope was brought to be a marvelous contrivance, but this latest addition puts it quite in the shade. In his success Herr Mayer has made a wide departure from customary methods. In fact the monster telescopes do not figure in his calculations whatever. Without going into a long-drawnout or technical explanation of the apparatus he has constructed, it is a novel affair, in that an enormous parabolic mirror 50 yards in diameter that revolves upon a fixed axis is the main scheme of the apparatus. This concave mirror which is of the ordinary "silvered" glass has a small convex parabolic mirror suspended at its focus; and this small mirror focuses the rays received from the larger one, and throws them on the lens of an immensely powerful microscope. Thus a clear and brilliantly-lighted picture of the moon or star under examination is brought immediately under the microscope, which has a magnifying power of many million diameters. Herr Mayer explains that it will thus be possible, almost, to see the time by the watch of the "man in the moon," or to see the bridges (if any) over the canals of

A HORSE THAT SNORES.

osity in the Animal Kingdom.

Snoring men are as plentiful as whisky in Kentucky. However, while this evil is predominant with the human race, yet it is indeed seldom that a member of the animal kingdom becomes afflicted with the snoring habit. There is just one case of the kind known to exist in Kansas City, Kan., and while there is no question about the existence of this one case, the afflicted animal contracted the habit from man, says the Kansas City Journal.

Prince, the oldest horse in the Kansa City (Kan.) fire department, has the snoring habit, and he's got it bad. All of the "laddies" at fire headquarters have good records as snorers, but Prince can allow them all a bad cold and then beat them out, pulled up. Snoring Prince, or the prince snorer, is the horse driven by Assistant Chief William McConnell. He generally minces away at his food until after 12 o'clock each night, providing there are no alarms. At about this hour he lies down in his stall, and in a few minutes his eyes close, and soon thereafter the snoring begins. The noise produced by the sleeping horse is similar to that of a snoring man. Before it became known that Prince actually snored several of the firemen, who take turns about watching at night, were accused of going to sleep on duty. The only foundation for the accusation was the snoring. In order to prove their innocence it became necessary for them to peach on Prince.

ENEMIES OF STREET CARS.

The Bucolic Drivers of Beer and Ice Wagons Cause Worry to the Motormen.

The arch-enemies of the street car are the beer wagons and the ice wagons. The haughty car can strike terror to the buggy or brougham or huckster's cart. and even the furniture van fights shy, but beer and ice wagons are built for keens, and would just as soon have a collision as not. Nothing short of a house falling on them could shake the driver out of his seat, says the Chicago Times-Herald. There is a certain air about these drivers. The man that drives the beer wagon is always full of beer, and the ice wagon man serves many saloons; at any rate, they have the same cast of countenance-stolid, indifferent, half defiant. And they act just the same.

They keep the track in spite of gongs, whistles and threats, and they take every chance of crossing in front of a car, and then they smile to see the contortions of the gripman and his brake. But they never speak or turn their heads. Just drive on, impassively, as if there was not a street car in the whole world.

Gripmen and motormen foam in impotent rage, and would be driven to drink if they had time, but it avails them not. It is supposed that when a street car man loses his job he takes to driving a beer or ice wagon and thus gets even with the corporation.

Wool from Limestone.

"An Indian chemist." says the Pharmaceutical Era, "has applied for patents on a process for making wool from limestone. After some sort of chemical treatment the rock is subjected to a drawing-out process, by which, it is said, it is converted into the finest and most pliable wool, of beautiful white color, soft as down, and both water and

Sugar Is Seldom Adulterated,

Nearly everybody entertains the opinion that a dishonest grocer has a penchant for mixing sand with his sugar for the purpose of gain. This is a popular error, for sugar is but rarely adulterated.
