

The New Orleans Bee.

NEW ORLEANS, WEDNESDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 6, 1854.

THE DAILY BEE.

Wednesday Morning, December 6th.

EXPRESS. The Northern mail came through yesterday.

WHOLESALE TRADER.

A few days ago we have occasion to combat the random assertions of our friends of the "News," that the American party was not now in existence. We have seen the result of the acts of that party, and from the decisions of the only journal in the country which has been called to speak for it, that the news is not in consonance with anti-slavery; that for the most part the candidates were conservatives, and that the whole was not in accordance with the advocates of abolition. The N. Y. Tribune is a suspicious sheet. It is true that this order had already crippled itself by its own acts. We have seen the organization of a grand sectional party in 1850, and the election of W. H. Seward to the Presidency. Had it not been for the action of the Southern party, it is true that the Tribune entered the faintest hope of deriving aid and comfort from that party to improve its design; it would have availed the Know Nothing, instead of detection.

In connection with that subject, we quote the following passage from an article in the "American."

Are we in alliance with abolitionists? We have no alliance with the best abolitionists.

We are divided by the abolitionists.

We are yet to see the first abolitionist who has renounced his principles and our cause.

The "National Era" of this city, the recognized organ of the abolitionists, has never taken the strongest grounds against us.

The "Daily Picayune" is the organ of the abolition tendency of our party, and we are, as far as we know, a Jesus shall not contend.
